sponsible or losses in the mails, should they occur The Connecticut election has not eased the fuithful. Even in the very cener of loyal New England a State has been mnd—the first State in which it has been sted-which very thatly and decidedly refuses, on any provocation, to go for negro suffrage. This is hard times to the party, sure enough. Had it come a year later, when negro suffrage had been forced on to the Southern States, it might not we been so bad; but for the people of Connecticut to sny the black is not eapable of government, thus publicly condemning the policy of making him a voter in the Sonthern States, is rough, hard, provoking, mortifying. How in the nam of Satan and his imps of radicalism is the ultra party to tulk about forcing negro equality on the whites of the South, when Yankee Connecticut says it is wrong? It was a mistake in the Rudiculs. They would never, if they had been discreef, have ventured on the question until the Southern negroes had fully received their franchise: when it would have been a matter of Indifference what determination the people of Connecticut made, The result has not surprised any one No people are more keen in discovering just where their interest lies than the Connectient Yankees. They knew negro suffrage would be fatal to them in their own State, and so voted against it. Doubtless very many of them hold as enacionsly as Greeley that the negro ught to have the right to vote, but for them to acknowledge what they thought was right, and to pursue it, were two quite different things. They generally are. If the question had been put in another shape; if self-Interest had been excluded; if, in other words, the question had been, "shall the negroes not in Connecticut, but Mississippi, be allowed to vote?" we have no doubt the mitneg State would have come up all right. She would in the fullness of justice, which resembles the charity defined by Sydney Smith, have been for conferring all rivil rights on the negro. "Charity," human nature," A never sees B in trouble but he thinks C ought to relieve him. So Connecticut would determine hat South Carolina ought to enfranchise the negro ought to be allowed to vote, and risk political success upon the justice of the issue. The Times, however, says they ought to be enfranchised fully, but Itself opposes allowing them the right or privilege. As far as honesty is concerned, by his own showing, the abused politicians

The election, however, has been very onfusing. The Times has not fully re overed from having been pounded on the head. It may find out in time just what its own opinions are on the subject. The Union Press has a long article efending tien. Palmer's pass system to all negroes indiscriminately. The amoun of it is, that it is quite exensable to treat as free those who are slaves by the State laws, and not free by any Federal law. Exenses and apologies are all that can be expected in such a case. It is not denied that the law is violated; but the General can't take time to examine every case. Well, most people think that a man ought to take time to see whether he violates law or not. We waged war to compel men to obey law. That was the sole object of the late terrible contest. The credness of law is a rather serious matter, people are disposed to think; so much so, that they would not allow it at any ost. So far they were right. Then we protest against the Government violating nw, and setting up its discretion instead. Congress has defined those set tree by law. The law is not resisted in this State; although, as far us it frees negroes without compensation, it is nownerranted by the Constitution. The military are not asked to restore negroes to their wners. It is no part of their business, All we ask is, that the military do not violate the laws of the State. It is more ockery to ask Kentneky to adopt the nstitutional amendment, and, at the me time, tell us that our laws are of no ecount and will not be respected. Then our adoption of the Constitutional amendment would be of no account. The State will have self-respect enough to refuse to ass any laws on the subject until her iws are respected. The Press makes out a great necessity, wing to negroes crowding into the cities; and the New York Tribnne adds to it, that an insurrection was feared. All fudge! Who has heard of these apprehensions in this State? As to crnelties, there are, perhaps, some; for the white he people of this State are exceedingly tolerant to negroes. They put up with what they would not tolerate in white people. They would ship the latter in a harry for half the provocation they overlook in negroes. 'The fact is, there is no justification for this pass system, nuless upon imaginary necessities. If that is the case, let us understand that individuals may also violate law in case of necessity, and be the sole judges of the necessity. We can understand the necessity of executing the law, no matter what force it takes; but the necessity to violate law is to us incomprehensible.

ator Doolittle, of Wisconsin, a prominent Republican Senator, in a late letter, thus hits off the Chase and Sunner Radicals who are now opposing the President's policy. He says:

Yours, respectfully,

J. R. Doolittle. JUSTICE IN MISSOURIL—At a late term of the Circuit Court in Pike county, Mo., the grand jury were all of the Radical stripe of "loyalists," and all supposed to be members of the "Loyal Leagne." The Radical Congressman from that district, George W. Anderson, justifies the act of the Sheriff in thus making up a jury sworn to party measures. From this fact we may Imagine what kind of justice conservative men will get in Missouri, or anywhere else where these destructives have power.—[Alter Democrat.
